Howard County police to conduct sobriety checkpoint

Police will also add specialized DUI patrols throughout holiday season

The Howard County Police Department will conduct a sobriety checkpoint at an undisclosed location this weekend to promote awareness and reduce the number of alcohol-impaired drivers on the roads.

The checkpoint is part of the agency's overall traffic safety initiative to keep county roads safe for residents and travelers. It will be clearly marked with signs, lights and uniformed officers.

In addition to checkpoints, the department conducts several DUI patrol details throughout the year in which extra officers are on the road specifically to address the issue of impaired driving. These specialized patrols will take place throughout the holiday season. Officers have arrested more than 740 drivers for driving under the influence so far this year. Thirty percent of Howard County's fatal collisions year-to-date were alcohol-related.

Howard County checkpoints are part of the Checkpoint Strikeforce campaign and are funded in part by a grant from the Maryland Highway Safety Office. They are conducted in partnership with Maryland State Police and with support from Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Traffic crashes continue to be a leading cause of death for Maryland residents. Police urge drivers to always drive sober, obey the speed limit, wear a seat belt and eliminate distractions.

Officers will be out in force throughout the upcoming holiday season focusing not only on DUIs, but also speeding, seat belt/child safety seat violations, distracted driving, and other traffic violations. If you see an impaired driver on the road, please call 911.
