N.J. man dies in Jessup industrial accident

Howard County police were called to the scene of an industrial accident this morning after a delivery driver from New Jersey was killed while unloading large aluminum poles at a Jessup business.

Police were called to the 7700 block of Old Jessup Road around 8:15 a.m. and found Carlos Urena-Valverde, 54, of Plainfield, N.J., deceased at the scene. Detectives found no signs of foul play. Preliminarily, it appears that Urena-Valverde was unloading a large pile of poles when the weight shifted and the poles fell on him.

Urena-Valverde was working for a company called AD Freight Logistics in New Jersey. He was making the delivery to Sunair Awnings in Jessup. No one else was involved in the incident.
